

Employee-Level Qualification and Training For Greater ROI from Outsourced Workers

Qualifying contractors at the company level is a great way to mitigate risk. But, what about the individuals that come to your sites to perform work? Are they qualified to do the work properly and in a safe manner? EmployeeGUARD empowers organizations to take control of their contractor qualification and training process down to the individual employee level. Get the best quality of work and a greater return on investment by ensuring only the right people with the right training and qualifications are allowed to perform critical job functions at your sites.

Reduced Risk

Reduce the risk of costly safety incidents and citations by taking control of the employee qualification process. Verify contractor-reported qualification and ensure that only the right workers are allowed on your sites to perform work.

Increased Safety

Gain the visibility needed to identify, monitor, and address license and certification gaps. Know exactly who is coming on site and ensure they are qualified and properly trained to safely perform critical job functions.

Faster Induction

Get contracted employees ready to work at your sites faster by empowering them to fulfill your requirements and complete your site-specific training before they arrive to your site.

Enhanced Quality of Work

Get the best work quality out of your outsourcing investment and avoid costly delays by ensuring contracted employees have the right qualifications and are properly trained.
